it better. A style that fits the woman in the rough tailor gown is built similarly to mun's cane, having a broad claw of wood or burnt ivery tipped with silver placed at right angles to the handle proper.

Burnt ivory is very fashionable still, especially if mounted with narrow fillshow an elf's face carved into the ivory, surmounted by a cap of silver. Very dressy umbrellas have handles of plain mother of pearl, fashioned columnlike: others have a large amethyst or emerald laid into the metal at the end. But women who dress modishly don't they do for the rough or scented wood, twisted and turned and capped charily

A word as to the care of your umbrella. Never put it ferrule downward when wet. If you can't open it and allow it to dry at its best, which is the correct method, then place it handle downward, so there is no chance for the drippings to remain in the tipand rot the silk. Again, never go out with your umbrella unrolled when not in use. It is a world of saving if the cover is always kept on it, to say nothing of the smarter appearance it makes. -Jorelyn Davis, in Chicago Record.

Woman's Most Attractive Age. The most attractive age of a woman's life is the period when she is still young enough to be pretty and old enough to be sympathetic, writes Octave Thanet in Ladies' Home Journal. For as grace is a woman's greatest beauty so sympathy is her greatest charm. A graceful and sympathetic woman is bound to be attractive to the end of her days. If she adds a taste in dress and some sense to her equipment for plensing and does not grow deaf I see no reason why she should Since the question, however, concerns Johnsing-Yes, sah, I is.
